

TOP CONTRACTORS

BOOM MARKS HEALTHY YEAR FOR CANADA'S HEAVYWEIGHTS

Times couldn't be much better for Canadian construction contractors, and there is no real end in sight to the good times. It's enough to make a pessimist cringe. Following a blistering pace of business in 2005, 2006 was even better. And according to the research you hold in your hands, 2007 looks like another winner.

There aren't many clouds on the horizon. The U.S. economy continues to be a concern, with a weak dollar and the sub-prime crisis. So far, though, the situation in Canada is quite different—especially in Canada's west, where the biggest single concern seems to be finding enough people to do all the work.

Every year, we take a look at business trends among the heavyweights in the Canadian construction industry. Without taking anything away from their smaller (and sometimes nimbler) competitors, they're the ones behind the megaprojects and the ones who work most heavily with governments and the associations to improve the industry.

It's important to note that the rankings are based on revenue, which is just one measurement among many in gauging a company's health. For example, a company could sell a money-losing division and see its revenues drop and its profits soar.

The data presented here is based on original research on the companies cited. Over the course of the past couple of months, e-mails, faxes and phone calls were in play, herding in the responses. The staff of On-Site magazine would sincerely like to thank the people who took the time to fill out the forms to make the research as complete as possible.

If you have any questions or concerns or want a copy of next year's form, please don't hesitate to get in touch with the editor at (416) 764-1612, e-mail: editor@on-sitemag.com.

Merging results from contractors who supplied estimates for both 2007 and 2008, growth of about 14.4 per cent can be expected industry-wide in 2008.

When broken down between eastern and western Canada at the Ontario/Manitoba border, the western provinces predict growth of approximately 19 per cent, while the eastern contractors expect growth to be relatively flat at about 1 per cent.
