

TOP Contractors

The Kings (and Queens) of Canadian Construction

Staff report

In these sensitive times, we have to be clear about our intentions when using a gender-specific cover to symbolize the strengths of the industry. After all, not one of our Top Contractors would have enjoyed the success they did without imagination and hard work from the ladies on staff. So in using the top-ranking playing card as a symbol, we'd like to emphasize that women are just as much a part of the contracting royalty as men.

This is the first time the Top Contractors has been published in April. Previously, we printed it in the November/December issue, so if you have the nagging feeling that you just saw it, you're probably right—no, time is not passing that quickly.

Publishing in April offers some important advantages. Far more companies were prepared to report on their 2008 results and offer 2009 forecasts in March than there were in the Fall of last year. The information is more up-to-date, there is a higher level of participation and the timing for release of the data is better, as we get into the swing of the construction season.

The data reported in this issue is quite interesting, since this is a transitional period. As we went to press with the previous Top Contractors report last year, there was still a very healthy sense of optimism about levels of construction business going forward, especially in the West.

Since then, the recession has hit the Canadian economy—and the construction business—with considerable impact. Financing has become a major issue for some projects, housing is soft at best and the slump in commodity prices, especially for oil, has led to a number of industrial and commercial projects being put on the back burner.

Our Top Contractors are Canada's biggest contractors and generally carry a healthy backlog of work, but those backlogs are shrinking and the construction environment is changing. One unpredictable variable that will have a huge effect on levels of construction is the vaunted stimulus spending proclaimed at the federal and provincial levels. Will the money reach the street in time to do any good? Or will it arrive suddenly, and in such massive quantities, that the industry is swamped?

We'll be reporting on the situation as the year progresses, and the ultimate results will be evident in next year's Top Contractors issue—in April! ▶

2009 GROWTH PREDICTIONS

Growth predictions for 2009 have dropped significantly since we last asked our Top Contractors for their estimates.

Last fall, the mood was still upbeat, and nationally the expectation was that business would grow by 13.1 per cent. This year's number, 6.5 per cent, shows the impact of the soft economy across the country. The data is obtained by merging results from respondents who supplied data for both 2008 and 2009.

The change in attitude is even more striking when companies headquartered in Eastern Canada (Ontario and eastwards) are compared with those from Western Canada (Manitoba and west).

Last fall, the western respondents were quite optimistic, calling for growth of approximately 19 per cent in 2009. The number revealed in the current research—3.9 per cent—is an indication of the slowdown caused by the commodities slump.

The eastern contractors, though, seem more positive. Last Fall, they called for growth of about four per cent. This time around, that number has increased to 10.2 per cent, perhaps in anticipation of the contracts deriving from the stimulus funding announced since January.

It should be remembered that the Top Contractors are Canada's largest contractors, and typically carry a backlog of projects that may span months or even years.
